INTRODUCTORY

COLORADO is an education and a joy. Alike in anticipation and in memory, it is the golden realm, where nature is in league with man, whether he be on business, or on pleasure bent. First of all, in Colorado you can be absolutely certain of comfort. That is the essential thing. In the Winter, even in the mountains, the cold is never unendurable. In the Summer, even in the cities of the plains and the lower valleys of the State, the heat is never enervating. Sunstroke and heat prostrations are unknown. In the shade, it is always cool, and at night, during the warmest weather, you must sleep under blankets. In the mountains, you can get any degree of coolness you want. As the altitude increases, the temperature goes down. You are prepared for the appreciation of the most splendid of scenic spectacles, by the advantages of a climate that has no superior.

For the literary masterpieces of the human mind you have only to go to the shelves of your library, but the pathway to erudition is tortuous and the guideboards are often misleading. The masterpieces of art are many of them tucked away in European galleries, and their enjoyment is hedged about with annoying regulations.

For the masterpieces of creation you must come to Colorado. Boundless plains, endless mazes of mountain ranges, canons, whose walls are piled upon walls, for thousands upon thousands of feet in height; hundreds of lakes and singing streams—these are features of the wonderland of the world.

Colorado is recreation—literally re-creation. Vacations here make new men and new women. You can be positive that stormy weather will not waste any of the precious days that you have set aside, to put yourself in shape, for business, or the Winter season's round of social obligations, again. You can be equally sure that, at the Summer resorts or watering places of the State, or in the wilds of the giant Rockies, whatever may be your tastes or physical condition, you will find the pursuit of pleasure or health a chase that brings results.

When he who, at the present writing, is the president of the United States, permits himself a few minutes' reverie, in the midst of a day of hard work, do you suppose that his mind drifts back to San Juan hill, or Albany, or Harvard? No. The chances are that he thinks of that Winter, in Western Colorado, when he was only vice president elect; of the time, when accounts of his adventures with mountain lions and wolves, fifty miles from a telegraph station, were picturesquely amplified by the imaginations of Denver correspondents and wired to Eastern newspapers.

When Ernest Thompson Seton, unhyphenated and unterrified, wants excitement and respite from the monotony of book making, he hastens West, to defy the Colorado game warden, in his native haunts.

If, with pencil or camera, you are seeking the sublime and beautiful, the place for you to come is Colorado.

If you wish to breathe air that is death to the bacilli of tuberculosis, come to Colorado!

If you seek restoration to health, by bathing in the radioactive waters of healing fountains, you will find that Colorado has the best and greatest variety of mineral and hot springs.

Should you care to inspect some of the most marvelous railway and other engineering feats of modern times, or to explore the depths of tunnels and shafts, in the greatest gold and silver-mining camps in the world, Colorado must be your destination.

When you have a few weeks to spend, where life is living, for the sportsman, the horseman, the mountain climber, the polo player, or the devotee of fashion, you will find the object of your quest in Colorado.

Colorado is vast. One visit can not exhaust the attractions the State has to offer. If you come once, you are likely to come again, and, after the second visit, you will probably become a permanent resident.

While you are merely a guest of the State, however, you will want to know about its hotels and resorts. Some of them are among the finest in the world, while, at many unpretentious boarding houses and ranch homes, in busy city or secluded spot, you can find comfort and satisfaction. The various other publications of the Colorado Promotion and Publicity Committee will give you complete and reliable information about the industries and many resources of the State. It is the purpose of this booklet to tell you just what you wish to know about the hotels, Summer and health resorts and camping places of Colorado. The information you are seeking will be found in the following pages.

COLORADO

ITS HOTELS AND RESORTS

IN preparing the following data concerning the hotels and resorts of Colorado, the utmost care has been exercised to procure reliable information. In a publication of this sort, however, it is inevitable that errors should creep in, although, in the present case, it is believed that they have been reduced, in number, to a minimum. In any event, the claim is confidently put forth that this compilation by the Colorado Promotion and Publicity Committee is the most complete and reliable compendium of information on the subject that has yet been prepared. The fullest data relating to the attractions of Colorado, as a place of resort for the tourist and health-seeker, and definite statements of fact, as to hotel and boarding-house accommodations and rates, are embraced therein, while a systematic attempt has been made to arrange the large amount of material that has been gathered, in a manner suitable for ready reference.

Every Summer and health resort of consequence, in Colorado, is mentioned in the following pages, while every county seat and nearly every other town and city, in the State, boasting of a population of 250 or more, and possessing attractions for pleasure-seeking visitors, has been similarly honored. Only such places as do not lay claim to having such advantages are omitted from the compilation.

It will be observed that considerable information is given concerning the camping localities of Colorado. In considering the opportunities which the State offers, for the enjoyment of life in the open air, the reader should know that camping outfits and all kinds of hunting and fishing equipment may be procured, at reasonable rates, in Denver and many other cities and towns, in the neighborhood of the localities which it is desired to visit for that purpose. Camping outfits may be rented, as well as purchased.

In giving the populations of communities, the United States census of 1900 has been followed. Many of the places mentioned have grown rapidly, in the last four years, some of them having more than doubled in population. Denver itself has shown a marked growth, in this respect, a conservative estimate of its present population (1904) being 170,000. Pueblo, Colorado Springs and Boulder are other important cities of the State, showing large increases of population. Several of the agricultural and horticultural districts show very important gains.

In the tables which follow, giving particulars concerning hotel rates and accommodations, the letters, "A" and "E," in the column headed "Plan," mean that the hotels, against the names of which they appear, are conducted on the "American" or "European" basis, according to the initial used. The abbreviation, "app'n," in the rates column, stands for "application."

DENVER, Denver County.

Capital of Colorado, metropolis and county seat. Known as "Queen City of the Plains;" also as "Denver, the Beautiful." Population, 133,859. Elevation, one mile. Beautiful and prosperous manufacturing, commercial and residence city. Climate unsurpassed. Fine hotels, clubs, churches, theaters, schools, etc. Magnificent view of more than 200 miles of the main range of the Rocky Mountains, from nearly every part of the city. Well worth visiting are the great smelters, the State capitol, in which are many fine collections; Carter's museum, the parks and suburban resorts. An excellent street-car system affords the means for numerous interesting trips about the city, and many one-day excursions, by rail, give the tourist an opportunity to visit magnificent canons and famous mining towns, as well as to observe wonderful examples of engineering construction. There is a fine "Seeing-Denver" car service. Denver is the chief railway center and the commercial metropolis of the Rocky Mountain region, and the natural starting point for trips to all parts of Colorado. It is reached, from the East, by the Burlington, the Santa Fe, the Rock Island, the Union Pacific (connecting, at Omaha, with the Northwestern and the St. Paul), and the Missouri Pacific railways. In addition to the regular hotels mentioned in the following table, there are many boarding and lodging houses, of all degrees of excellence, in all parts of the city. Numerous attractive suburbs and several summer gardens.

COLORADO

THE SPORTSMAN'S PARADISE

COLORADO is the sportsman's paradise. The principal varieties of game found in the State are deer, elk, antelope, bear, mountain lions, foxes, wolves, mountain sheep, grouse, prairie and sage chickens, quail, partridge, pheasants, wild turkey, geese, ducks, snipe and swans, besides other wild fowl and shore birds. Good hunting, in season, is found in nearly all sections of the State. In general, it may be said that all the clear, rapid water courses of Colorado are full of trout. There are several varieties of this game fish, including the native and the imported Rainbow (from California), the Loch Leven, the German and the so-called Eastern brook trout.

In the Gunnison River, on the western slope of the Rockies, all the varieties named are found. The Rainbow there grows to a great size, and develops, in the turbulent waters of the famous fishing stream, a strength and fighting ability that he does not show in his native habitat, in the Golden State, highly esteemed as he is there for his pugnacious qualities. Specimens have been caught, with rod and line, in the Gunnison, weighing over 12 pounds each. The Platte River, in the canon of that name, is also a favorite resort, for Colorado fishermen, in pursuit of the Rainbow. Some very large fish of that variety of trout have been taken from the waters of that stream. Other trout abound there.

Lovers of the rod will find exciting pastime, in many other of the mountain streams of Colorado, fishing for trout, while in several of the lakes of the State, notably Twin Lakes, the sport is splendid. The largest Rainbows on record have been taken from those two bodies of water, some of them having weighed over 14 pounds apiece. The fish, however, are not such strenuous fighters as those of the running streams. Bass also are caught, in several waters, in Colorado, while pickerel and other fish of combative proclivities abound elsewhere, in the State.

Golf, polo and tennis find many votaries in Colorado, excellent facilities for all of these sports being provided, at many points in the State, especially at Colorado Springs, Glenwood Springs, Estes Park and other of the principal resorts and watering places.

STATE GAME AND FISH LAWS

In condensed form, the Colorado game and fish laws read:

NO OPEN SEASON, for bison, mountain sheep, elk (till 1907), antelope, beaver, wild turkey (till 1907), quail (crested quail till 1907; Bob White till 1920), partridge, Mongolian pheasant, ptarmigan, insectivorous or song birds.

NO CLOSE SEASON, for bear, mountain lion, lynx, bobcat, fox, coyote or wolf. Bounty on two last-mentioned animals.

DEER (with horns) may be killed, from September 15 to September 30. Natural evidence of sex must not be destroyed.

GROUSE, prairie and sage chickens may be killed, from September 1 to October 20. Doves, August 1 to August 31.

DUCKS, geese, snipe, curlew, brant, swans and other water fowl and shore birds may be killed, from September 10 to April 15, except at altitudes of over 7,000 feet; there, from September 15 to May 1. No food allowed to be placed within 100 yards of shore or blind, for purpose of feeding fowl.

TROUT (not less than seven inches in length) and other fish, may be caught (with hook and line only), from June 1 to October 31. No fishing allowed between 8 o'clock P. M. and 4 o'clock A. M. Permit from State fish commissioner required, for the catching of white salmon.

BAG LIMIT. For one day—Twenty-five ducks and 25 other birds; 20 pounds of trout and 50 pounds of other fish. For season—One deer (with horns). Allowed in possession, at one time—Fifty ducks and fifty other birds; 25 pounds of trout and 50 pounds of other fish. Possession allowed, for five days only, after close of season, except as provided for private parks, etc.

PROHIBITED. Trapping or obtaining game or fish, by any other method than by gun or hook and line; shooting at game from public highway, or using steel or hard-pointed bullets; coursing game with dogs; killing by proxy; selling game or fish, taken at large.

PENALTIES (Minimum). For unlawfully killing or injuring each elk, $200; each deer, $50; each antelope, $100; each mountain sheep, $200; each buffalo, $1,000; each beaver, $25; each bird, $10; each fish, $1. Imprisonment, in addition to fine, is provided, in some cases, at the discretion of the court.

LICENSES. Each non-resident (general hunting), $25; non-resident (bird hunting), one day, $2; each additional day, $1. Resident (hunting), $1; guide, $5.

TO THE INTENDING VISITOR TO COLORADO

COME first to Denver. It is the State capital, as well as the largest, wealthiest and most metropolitan city between the Missouri River and the Pacific coast. It is nearly two-thirds of the way across the continent, going westward from the Atlantic coast. It is 538 miles from Omaha, 639 miles from Kansas City, Mo.; 658 miles from Salt Lake City, 922 miles from St. Louis, 1,026 miles from Chicago, 1,150 miles from Galveston, 1,411 miles from Los Angeles, and the same distance from Portland, Ore.; 1,457 miles from San Francisco and 2,025 miles from New York.

From Denver, as a starting and returning point, the most interesting localities in Colorado can be visited, and some of the grandest scenery in the world can be viewed, in the course of a journey of a day, over one or other of the railroads whose lines traverse the various sections of the State. If the visitor wishes to prolong his sight-seeing experience, he can make two, three or four-day tours, either of which will amply repay him for the time and money it will cost. Liberal excursion rates are granted by all Colorado railroads during the tourist season. There is much to see in Denver itself. To assist the visitor to a proper knowledge of the city's attractions, "Seeing Denver" trolley observation cars and automobiles are operated throughout the entire municipality.

After you have familiarized yourself with Denver and its surroundings, you can plan where else you will go in Colorado. The choice of destination is unlimited; the opportunities for the pursuit of health and pleasure are boundless. To assist you to an intelligent determination of where you shall go, is the purpose of the present publication of the Colorado Promotion and Publicity Committee, on the hotels and resorts of the Centennial Commonwealth.
